

A webpage that for an NGO to spread awareness on malnutrition in school children in Teach for India

Research introduction:

India is one of the worst performers in malnutrition in children. Though schemes like mid-day meals are trying to mitigate this, it is still a growing concern. Here, write about the perils of malnutrition and the current status of the health indicator in India.

NGO Websites

Websites of NGO's need to be welcoming and innovative enough to attract change makers. In this section, write about the main features of websites that all NGOs should have.

Needs:

Having a website increases the credibility and trust of people in an NGO.

A website increases the reach and awareness of an NGO and its cause.

An efficient website can act as a great marketing tool for the NGO.

Scope:

The webpage has static content to create awareness of malnutrition. The webpage does not have any functionality to sign up for volunteering or donating.

The webpage provides details on the malnutrition of school children in India.

Objective:

Users should be able to view the statistics on malnutrition.

Users should be able to view detailed information on the causes of malnutrition in school children.

Users should be able to view a description of the ill effects of malnutrition in school children.